

Champions In Life Award

My life's work. I was contemplating my life's work tonight as I realized that 10 yrs ago, I was at my first Olympics. I am so happy to know that my life's work has brought forth many winners, stars, heroes and champions.

I wanted to thank you for being a part of what has been my cause for over 40 yrs.

Subject: winner, star, hero or champion. . . which one are you?

*A winner is the one who, on that day, out did all others, they were better than all their competitors and are acknowledged for their performance that day.

*A star has irresistible charisma regardless of their actual substance of performance, they can be the center of attention with or without a competent performance.

*A hero is someone that is respected for their unfailing effort, the one that never waivers whether they are successful or despite failure, and continues to strive to do their best regardless of result, they gain respect because of their belief in the cause.

*A champion is a combination of all of the above, one who has demonstrated the ability to win, to have overwhelming appeal, to persevere and persist in all situations and demonstrates all of these qualities over a period of time that allows us to become followers and believers in that person and what they represent. A champion has longevity that gives hope and inspiration to others that would aspire to become what that person represents.

My goal is to make champions.
